It is most unethical to deny our immediate attention to resolve the pollution surrounding and within our Willamette river. There's no question if such action is worth money or time. The preservation of our environment determines our successful continuing existence on this planet. Parties responsible for toxic waste pollution should, and is only fair to be held accountable and pay for clean up. We must put forth more efforts into the preservation of such a vast natural habitat, as pollution causes wildlife mortality rates to rise.

Question. Do we care for cleaner, safer, more sustainable future? That shouldn't be a question, just a smart answer.
